Winemaker Notes

We entered 2014 with drought on our minds, but substantial rains in February soon tabled that concern. Moderate temperatures during the growing season reduced the potential for sunburn and raisining, while increasing the fruit's concentration and complexity. We saw great uniformity of berries at harvest. Even heat at the end of August and first part of September helped finish maturity...lots of fruit came in at same time. This was another earlier than average vintage.

Our 2014 Zinfandel / Dry Creek Valley welcomes you with aromas of black cherry cream, dark plum, blackberry, and cranberry. The elegance of this wine starts on the attack with brambly, dark fruit, and carries thru the rich mid-palate with clove and brown spice. Intricate layers of berry fruit and spice leads you to a long and structured finish.
